Letter of Reference for Mr. David Major

I first heard David Major speak at a HOBY leadership seminar in June 2001. I was highly impressed by this young speaker and on Thursday, September 25, 2003, I asked Mr. Major to speak to the freshmen residence hall at Nazareth College in Rochester, New York.

The ideas and various topics he discusses in his presentation are the perfect thing for freshmen to hear because they are starting out in a new place and are now faced with decisions, challenges, regrets, and triumphs. Mr. Major's enthusiastic and comedic character brings out his main points and adds real meaning to his presentation. Due to his character, he is able to energize a group of people and even includes them into his presentation.

He uses his many different experiences in his speech and every member of the audience can relate to those experiences. His experiences include various leadership roles he has had, life as a college student, and general life experiences. He shows people how to discover their own talents and use them effectively.

Mr. Major has a very special talent. He brings a new style to motivational speaking through his enthusiasm and comedy. I enjoy listening to him speak over and over. Every time, I, personally, come away with new ideas and new ways to look at the past, present, and future.

Sincerely,

Suzanne Pohorence
